“FABRIC PAINTING AND JEWELLERY MAKING”

Fabric Painting is a very interesting hobby and passion that one can inculcate. There are professionals who specialise in fabric painting in a big way commercially. It's been an initiative and a breakthrough on our part here at Pidilite to have launched out new range of Fevicyl Fabric Colours that are ideal and apt to be used on fabrics.

The Fevicyl Fabric colours are bright, bold and they are versatile on fabric/s. The colours are water based and absolutely safe for children as they are non toxic in nature.

Fabric painting can be successful only if you use the correct kind and type of fabric. The nature and properties of Fabric colours make it apt for fabric no doubt but choosing the right fabric is important. Fabric colours are perfect and best on materials such as cotton, khadi and silk as they are natural fibre fabrics.

There are few important key specifics that one needs to keep in mind while painting on fabric materials. Here are few pointers ; A tightly woven fabric when painted on will give you a very smooth kind of a finish. Similarly, a loose fabric can nevertheless be painted but requires a specific kind of technique. The higher the thread count of a fabric the better would be the final resultant.

Another very vital aspect that needs to be kept in mind is, how a fabric needs to be prepared prior to painting. Firstly, a fabric needs to be pre washed so that if there is scope of shrinkage in it, it would be over with and if any starch present that too would be washed off. Secondly, the fabric would have to be dried and ironed.

Once these things are done on a fabric, your base material is now ready to be painted with Fabric Colours. synthetic fabrics now, they normally do not absorb colours as they are made of polymers and the paint would merely sit atop the fabric. Having said that Fevicyl Fabric Paints work well on synthetic fabrics, provided the fabric has no sheen or an oily finish. Washable, natural fibres and blends are the best fabrics to be worked on with Fabric paints.
